Santiago Belgrano is a pianist, composer and educator. Born in Córdoba, Argentina, in 1989. He started to play piano at an early age, and since he was a kid he felt attracted by many different genres, such as jazz, classical music and Latin American music. His education, both in conservatories and through private lessons, was focused on classical piano, jazz and composition. He studied with many of the most recognized musicians and teachers of Argentina, the Netherlands and the United States of America, such as Juan “Pollo” Raffo, Enrique Norris, Paul Komen, Sophia Rosoff, John Bloomfield, Jacob Sacks y Michael Moore.

He performed at many of the main stages in Argentina and abroad, and had the privilege of sharing stage with some of the most distinguished artists of the genre, such as Michael Moore, Jack Walrath, Matt Wilson, Enrique Norris, Carlos Lastra, Mariano y Sebastián Loíacono, entre otros.

His album “Vicisitudes”, recorded on 2014, was selected by the prestigious Club del Disco on its selection from October, 2014. The album features Diana Arias on bass, Enrique Peña Arenas on guitar and Guillermo Harriague on drums, plus guests Rodrigo Domínguez on tenor sax and Enrique Norris on cornet.
